SPECIAL ISSUE

President's Corner
by Ava

Here it is the start of a new year and time start thinking of 1996. We ended 1995 with the treasury still in the black, (not by much, about $175) a lot more members than in the past few years (58), and the starting of an FTM group under the umbrella of the SGA thanks to Jami. What I would really like to see, is one of the SO's starting up the SO group again. (It hasn't been active since Helen left the Association and is a very real need.)

In 1995 we had six shopping nights at Fluffy's, a shopping night at BeBops, and two photo sessions. The turnout at our meetings has been great. The Christmas parties at both the Tea Cup Cafe and Joseph's were a lot of fun for all those attending. Members who missed them lost out on a great time at both.

We have twenty to thirty members at most meetings. Percentage wise, that is a third to a half of our membership at the meetings. There are larger organizations around but their turnout at meetings is much smaller by percentage. Let's keep up the good attendance. Something else I am very proud of is the way our members treat the new people coming to a meeting for the first time. Every member of the group should be commended for this as it helps the Association grow, alsoit gives new people the feeling that this is a group that cares about them and they are not alone.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

GOING'S ON?

WITTNIE'S THOUGHTS

Comments from Ava's article has opened a few holes in my memory. I remember my first meeting over three years ago. The totally structured boring meetings and lack of decisions and direction. I often wonder why I even bothered to return to the next meeting. If my desire to contact others in the community had not been so strong, I probably would not have. There was only one person at the first meeting that made me feel welcome, unfortunately due to personal problems that Heeere it is folks, our big New Year's double issue! Yeah, I was approached by our esteemed editor (and desktop publishing grunt) to come up with some meaningful dribble to fill this thing up. Okay, so far, so good. Here's more. And some more. Hey, it's easy writing for this rag!

But seriously, let's give some credit where it's due. On the top of our kudos list - our one and only WITTNIE! Besides coming up with a very creative spelling for her name, she's also been doing a great job producing and editing the newsletter. You have to understand that these things don't come together automatically with one press of a computer key. It takes time and patience (and a good collection of clip art) to put this thing into print. So, thanks Wittnie!

Next, we honor our board chairperson: AVA! Not only does she take care of the business end of our group, she also runs out and gets our newsletter printed and mailed. Let's not forget that she also (wo)mans the official SGA telephone hotline. Hey, how would you like to answer the phone late at night and have some yahoo ask you if you're wearing something sexy at that moment? Actually, I guess some of our members may like that, such as oRbrtae (name cleverly scrambled to conceal her identity). Sooooo, thanks Ava!

And finally, let's have a big

This year we shared a booth at Freedom Fair, at the state capitol, with ETVC and had our own booth at Rainbow Festival. We also gained official recognition from Lambda as the main gender group in Sacramento.

This year I would like to see the SGA accomplish even more and have more outside activities for our members. Visitors from other parts of the country have visited us at out meetings and commented on the group and the amount of fun we seem to have. A couple of them made comments to Wittnie and I that they had heard before coming here that the SGA was the "Up and Coming" group on the west coast. It should make us all feel good about the organization and make us want to do even better in 1996.

We have elections coming up soon and would like to hear from members wishing to run for the board, head up committees or organize activities. Every so often we hear from member that we should do this or that, but no one wants to take the responsibility for making it happen. There are a lot of capable people in the SGA. Lets get some of you to use those capabilities to help us all. Most all the things we have done in the last few years have been because of the efforts of just three or four members. Let's have a little more participation from our membership.

All in all it has been a very good year for the SGA. Let's make 1996 even better.

Ava

WHAT'S IN A NAME

In a recent conversation with a new member the question came up as to some of the terms we use in the gender community. For this reason we thought a listing of the most common terms would be appropriate.

Bigendered (BG) - One who has a significant gender identity that encompasses both genders, masculine and feminine. Transsexuals are normally do not consider themselves to be bigendered.

Bisexual (community) - One who has significant sexual or romantic attractions to members of both the same sex and the other sex, or who identify as members of the bisexual community. Derogatory terms from homophobes are the same as those for lesbians and gay men. Derogatory terms used by lesbians, gay men and some heterosexuals include: fence sitter, AC/DC, double-gaited, confused.

Crossdresser (CD) - 1) A transvestite 2) One who, regardless of the motivation, wears the clothes, makeup, etc. assigned by society to the opposite sex (i.e. a transvestite is a crossdresser but a crossdresser is not necessarily a transvestite).

Drag Queen (DQ) - 1) A M2F crossdresser who employs dramatic clothes, makeup and mannerisms often for other peoples entertainment, appreciation or for its shock value. 2) A member of the gay community who expresses transgender characteristics (i.e. crossdresser). Note, this term is considered derogatory by some. Also, many such members of the gay community do not consider themselves to be transgendered.

Female Impersonator (FI) - A male hand for the regular contributors to this newsletter - yes, we are just brimming with literary talent! No names here, since I may miss somebody, but we know who they are. Of course, nobody is really a regular regular, but we appreciate their input, regardless. We really do have a few very talented writers in our group (no, I'm not plugging moi - just ask Wittnie, I write at the sixth grade level), but unfortunately, we haven't seen anything from them for a while.

This month, we finally hear from one contributor who use to write these wonderful personal novelettes that were touching and inspiring. There was a long spell, though, that we hadn't heard from her, but that was because she was too preoccupied with adding extra layers of crinoline under her skirts.

Another talented scribe would rather blab into her own polygenderous publication than write for us - too bad, because she's reeeeel smart AND purty 'nuff to win a pageant. Okay, no guilt trips here; writing is voluntary. (Actually, the two aforementioned talents have been REALLY busy, so it's okay. In fact, the latter writer has a regular column in a local alternative newspaper.)

So, the next time you see this newsletter, don't forget the nice people involved in its publication, and start thinking about being part of it too. Ask not what this newsletter can do for you. Ask what you can do for this newsletter. (My apologies to JFK).

LISA LISA: Okay, let's set the record straight here. There are two people in the SGA with the name Lisa. One of them often wears a cowboy hat and boots and calls everyone "darling". The other one does not. In fact, the "other one" is not a member of the Caucasoid hordes. She's actually one of those "slanty-eyed" types. That's me. I felt I needed to clarify this, since there was a birthday bash for "Wes and Lisa" a couple of months ago, and I ended up receiving several "Happy Birthday" salutations - but no gifts (sh*t!).

Well, the confusion came about because a lot of people thought the "Wes and Lisa" reference concerned two separate people. We now all know that there is a person who is sometimes "Wes" and sometimes "Lisa". And this person is altogether separate from the other Lisa (me). Gottit?

The Cotillon is coming! "Whazzat?" you may ask. I'm talking about the annual glitzy dress ball that's in The City every January. Wittnie, Shelby, Billie Jean, and I were there last year and it was quite an evening. In fact, Billie Jean won the "Miss ETVC" title (an event held during the ball) back in '92 and since then has become a celebrity among the SanFranTran crowd. Give her credit; she single-handedly lifted our fair Capital City "TG status" from hopelessly dowdy to artsy respectability.

Should you go? Well, if you've ever had the fantasy of re-attending your high school prom (but this time you get to wear the dress!), then this might be just what you've been looking for. Escorts are optional, of course.

It's on Jan. 27 in San Francisco. Ask about it at the next meeting, or call Ava for information (sorry Ava). I believe tickets at the door will be in the ballpark of $25 to $30. As far as I know, at least four or five SGAers are confirmed to go, so if you're interested, join the gang!

YES, WE HAVE NO BANANAS: Well, actually we still do have them, but there are a few members (hah, choice word!) who may be considering getting the old "banana split" procedure. Let's not mince words here (as for genitalia, that's another matter). You know I'm talking about SRS, otherwise known as Sexual Reassignment Surgery. Yup, THE OPERATION!

Okay, I'm not going to get into any gory details. Besides, there are oth

SGA BOARD MEMBER GOES TO WASHINGTON D.C.

Ms. Beach Goes to Washington

I'm sure much will be written regarding the First National Gender Lobby Days and what was accomplished, however what I wish to do is to share with you my own personal experiences and observations with respect to this historic event. Although the organizers have been quick to thank those of us who attended, I would like to express my appreciation to those who worked such long, hard hours to provide the rest of us with the opportunity to even participate in such a happening.

As you may have already heard, approximately ninety to one hundred of us from all over the country attended the First National Gender Lobby Days, representing seventy percent of the States. The actual lobbying effort was scheduled to take place on October 2nd and 3rd, however I arrived Saturday evening in order to have time to relax and see a little of Washington. I'm glad that I did, because it gave me an opportunity to make some wonderful new friends.

After an uneventful flight from Sacramento to Washington National Airport, I finally managed to collect my baggage after waiting an hour for it to come up on the baggage carrousel. I would not normally check anything, but the thought of a girl dragging all that luggage on and off an airplane hardly seemed lady-like, hence I was able to enjoy an extra hour in the airport. The next part of the adventure involved taking the Metro from Washington National to the hotel at College Park, MD an advertised 42 minutes away. Now the fun begins !

Unaware that there was more than one way out of the Metro station, I proceeded to walk the advertised four blocks to the hotel. After hiking darn near to Baltimore, I began to realize that I was never going to reach the hotel. Thank goodness I'd bought one of those little luggage thing-a-ma-bobs with wheels or I would have really been in bad shape. So, back to the Metro station and a phone... "Help, I'm lost !" No problem, simply walk straight out the other exit four blocks to the hotel. Sure enough, there it was. And there I was, soaking wet from the humidity and glowing more than any lady has ever glowed.

So, I checked in, dried myself off and went to dinner. Other than Taco Bell and a few other fast food places, there was really only one true restaurant near the hotel... look it's a college town ! I walked over to the restaurant and just as I was checking in with the hostess, someone walked up to me and asked if I'd liked to join them. It was a girl named Debbie, who used to teach at UC Davis and was now living in Wisconsin. Turns out that another one of the girls had spotted me and sent her over. That other girl was Michele Kammerer, a Fire Captain in the Los Angeles Fire Department that I had met earlier in the summer while touring art galleries in Sacramento.

I met several other girls at dinner, including Joni from Omaha, Gloria from somewhere in Iowa and Meredith from somewhere ! After dinner, we went to a small coffee house and talked for another hour or so. The next morning, we all got together again quite by accident and took the Metro into Washington for some serious sightseeing. Before we left, we hooked up with Lisa Maxwell, Vice President of ETVC who had just come in on the red eye. She's such a bundle of energy, she wasn't even considering sleeping. So off we went.

The first thing we decided to visit was the Vietnam War Memorial. This probably could have been a moving experience no matter what, but given that quite a few of the girls had been there (yes and done that !), there were more than a few tears shed. We had to walk down the mall to the Memorial, so there was ample opportunity to shoot pictures with the Washington Monument as a backdrop. On the way, we ran into two other groups of girls here for Lobby Days. Wow, I'm suddenly beginning to feel we're out in force !

Following the Vietnam War Memorial, we headed over to the Natural History Museum. Not having a lot of time, we saw what we could and then tried to see at least part of the American History Museum. I think the scientific exhibits in this museum were some of my favorites. About out of time, we headed back to the Metro station. We had to make an eight o'clock meeting back at the hotel.

We just had enough time to grab dinner at Taco Bell (oh boy !) before the meeting began. The meeting room was crowded, hot and humid. But we needed to get a quick education in lobbying and although it took three hours we finally had reached some comfort level by the time we broke up. The Human Rights Campaign Fund (HRCF), who you might recall we had previously been at odds with, was there to help us. They are a professional, full-time lobbying organization and were able to provide us with a number of pointers... little things such as, sending cards to the Congressman's office for the upcoming holidays. Phyllis Frye, Riki Wilchins and others had done a great job of putting together packets of information to be distributed to each Congressman's office.

This was the first time the California delegation was assembled. There were five of us, and I think we may have just had the most diverse and stereotype-breaking bunch of folks at Lobby Days... the neatest part was we had two guys ! The delegates were the aforementioned Michele Kammerer and Lisa Maxwell; James Green, Director of FTM International; Stephan Thorne, Sergeant San Francisco Police Department; and myself, a Sacramento Gender Association Board Member.

Ms. Beach Goes to Washington

began with a Metro ride into Washington for a press conference on the South steps of the Capitol. ABC's 20/20 was there along with CNN and several local TV stations. Actually, 20/20 was almost constantly present since they were gathering additional information for the piece they were doing on TOPS. Following the press conference, it was time to begin the actual attack on Congress.

Congress was not in session this week, something that may have turned out to be an actual blessing. The nice thing was the office buildings were not crowded and we were not competing with a large number of professional (and rich !) lobbyists to get into the various offices. Besides, the chances of getting to meet with an actual Member of Congress as opposed to a member of his or her staff was slim to begin with.

The intent of the five of us from California was to meet with and get material into the hands of each of the Representatives and both Senators from our State. We actually met with staff from both Senator's offices, and most of the Representatives. In a few cases, we were forced to simply leave material since there was no one to meet with at the time we had available. In total, we only missed two offices. Needless to say, we walked a lot, even after we discovered how to get to the subway between the Rayburn House Office Building, the Capitol and the Hart Senate Office Building. Next time I won't bring just comfortable shoes, I'll bring my tennis shoes... the ultimate in blending ! Those marble floors are definitely hard on your feet.

In every meeting I was in, I would say we were warmly received. everyone was courteous. Many of the staff had lots of questions which we gladly answered. Besides covering a number of major issues (ENDA inclusion, health care, hate crimes reporting, incarceration issues and the Gender Bill of Rights), the main purpose of our visits was to break down barriers, destroy existing stereotypes, and establish an ongoing dialog with the Members of Congress. I think we accomplished them all.

At best, we are where the Gay and Lesbian movement was twenty to twenty-five years ago. I always knew that these people were a political force, however I am totally amazed at what they have accomplished. Nearly every office had a staff member responsible for gay and lesbian issues and in many cases there were gays and lesbians on the staffs. This fact may be somewhat distorted given that we were dealing entirely with California Members of Congress, but none-the-less, it is impressive. We have a long way to go. We know that the political environment is currently not a good one for us, but we have made a start. We are in for the long haul and when we do this again next year, it will be great to be able to go back to these offices and at least know that they know something about what it means to be transgendered.

On Tuesday morning, we met in front of the office of Marion Barry, the Washington DC mayor. The intent was to distribute leaflets explaining our concerns regarding the Tyra Hunter incident and to attempt to get the mayor to come out and talk with us. After about an hour, he finally did. He really became quite willing to talk after he determined that the TV cameras belonged to 20/20 ! Some members of TOPS wanted an opportunity to meet with the DC fire chief and they got it.

By Tuesday evening, many had departed for their homes. I was not fly ers in our group who are perfectly happy having "little freddie" (or whatever you call him) around for fun. So, let me just make a few long-winded comments.

Our group is composed of many different varieties of Trangendered lifestyles. Transsexualism is one component as is transvestism. Some of us are in one sub-group. Some of us are in another. Some of us are straddling the fence. Generally, we all seem to get along and respect one another. For those who are committed to eventually going through with the "change", I feel that they should be recognized for the tremendous effort and courage that's required. I mean, hey, this is a big deal. We're not just talking about getting a new hairstyle.

To do this transition, one must take hormones, go through electrolysis (ouch!), inform family and friends, find a viable career solution, and scrape together the money for THE OPERATION. I mean, it really requires a set of balls to go through all this.

For those of you who are CDs who might envy the TSs because of their "feminization", your situation, in most ways, is a lot nicer. To have a stable life that's complemented by being a "weekend wench" is really having the best of both worlds. Many CDs can find that with practice and diligence, they can look as good as any genetic woman (well, almost). [PREACHY MODE ON]

Ultimately, we should all share an understanding that everyone is different and that each has her/his unique circumstances. Although some of us are in much different life paths than others, we should use our group to learn about each other and to provide emotional support when it's needed. Of course, we should also have a lot of fun. [PREACHY MODE OFF]

Thanks to the Tea Cup Restaurant for the wonderful Christmas dinner special and "fashion contest". They were gracious enough to provide gifts for everyone and prizes for the contest. Needless to say, somebody tall with a nice lean body won the grand prize - bitch! Oh, sorry, didn't mean that.

Anyway, I'm a loyal customer from now on. Besides the great food, I really like the people who run that place. In fact, I'm planning to go there again on a non-meeting night just to show my appreciation. If anyone feels a craving for good Chinese food, give your business to them. They deserve it. Oh yeah, by the way, congratulations to Shelby, for being the fashion goddess.

DAMN PETTICOATS!!

I started thinking the other day, (I know it's dangerous to get this old girl thinking), about something Linda Lee said about having a sissy chapter of the SGA. You know, like SGA, SC (Sissy Chapter) headed up by Linda Lee. Then I started thinking about other like SGA, TG (Tall Girl's Chapter) headed up by Shelby or SGA LOLC (Little Old Ladies Chapter) headed up by Roberta. I could go on and on. We could have a SGA PROF (Professionals Chapter) headed up by Wittnie or one of the other professionals in the group or SGA PC (Poets Chapter) headed up by Billie Jean. How about SGA MC (Marylin Chapter) headed up by Stella or SGA CGC (Computer Girls Chapter) headed up by Anyse. Or how about SGA H&F (Health and Fitness Chapter) headed up by Tina Louise.

With so many chapters we'd need advertising. We could have 60 second spots on the talk show programs. Something like, "LADIES, YOU WANT TO WEAR THE PANTS IN THE FAMILY? SEND YOUR MAN TO SGA AND WE'LL HAVE HIM IN PANTIES AND PETTICOATS IN NO TIME." OR "WIVES, DID YOU CATCH YOUR HUSBAND WEARING YOUR PANTIES? BUY HIM HIS OWN AND SEND HIM TO THE SGA." OR "WOMEN, ARE YOUR MEN TOO MACHO? SEND THEM TO US AND WE'LL FEMINIZE THEM." Being on TV you'd have to have someone like Linda Lee, in all her petticoated glory, as a spokesperson. I can see it now, Linda Lee in a little girls dress with five petticoats under it, promoting cross-dressing. What a hit, she could use some of her lines from her stage show.

We'd then have to start a school for cross dressing with Krystel (no one would argue with her) as head master. Every student would have to start in Linda Lee's "School for Sissies", she's got her own plan for that. Get some short guy in there and send Stella, Krystel, Shelby and Allison into the room to intimidate him.

There would be classes in:
"HAIR AND MAKEUP" by Toni
"DRESSING IN SIMPLE ELEGANCE' by Lisa and Shelby
"WALKING IN VERY HIGH HEELS" by Allison and Krystel (we would have to borrow teachers from the "Lost Girls" for this one.)
"KARAOKE SINGING" By Stella
"RUNNING FOR PUBLIC OFFICE EN-FEMME" by Charla
"OVERHAULING YOUR CAR WITHOUT CHIPPING YOUR NAILS" by Clarise and Lisa E.
"GETTING ALONG IN THE REAL WORLD AS A GIRL" by Christina and Julie

Anyway thinking about this was fun. A mind is a terrible thing to waste and I think I just lost mine. I think I'm going to blame it on Linda Lee and those damn Petticoats.

New Support Group for FTM's in Sacramento area

A new support group for female to male transsexuals in all stages of transition is forming in Sacramento. The group meets the last Saturday of every month from 11:00 am - 2:00 p.m. and is open to female to male Do you have information or transsexuals and their SO's (significant others).

Currently the goals of the group are support and exchange of information for FTM's and their significant others. For further information contact Jami G. at (916) 854 - 4942.

SGA EDITOR NOTE:

The SGA had been contacted by a group of FTM TS's wishing to discuss the posibility of combining resources to better serve the transsexual community.

The voting Board members of the SGA has accepted their proposal and position as a sub-group (Chapter) of the Sacramento Gender Association. This Chapter is to be Chaired by an elected representative from within the Chapter. At the present time the only direct connection with the SGA is an agreement to include their meeting notices and news articles within the SGA newsletter and the addition of their members to our mailing list.

It is the voting Board members desire to combine at a later date this Chapters membership with our dinner and social meetings. With the possibility of future social functions.

It is with the greatest of pride and friendship that we welcome this group of individuals.

LABELS

Ever wonder who comes up with our labels. Like the word straight which I believe is opposite of bent? Anyway here's my attempt and perhaps the shortest version so far: You see, he's gender bending if he likes just wearing the clothes. Unless he gets excited after a while making him a transvestite. Unless he's touching his feminine side first making him a cross-dresser. Unless he's being touched by another guy which makes him a drag queen. Unless that guys touching the women within making him a transsexual. Unless both sides are being touched making him transgendered. Unless of course he's simply entertaining making him a female impersonator. Clear so far? No? Cool! Then how about simply saying:

"What's my sexual orientation? Mostly satisfaction.

Why do I do it? Because I can.

What am I? I'm ME you silly

Linda Lee.

I ALWAYS BREAK OUT IN TINY RED BUMPS AFTER I SHAVE MY LEGS.

If your skin is prone to ingrown hairs or blemishes, try exfoliating your legs with a washcloth or loofah before shaving. Also, if you're using a double-blade razor, switch to a single-blade razor. It's less abrasive and won't oiyt aggravate sensitive skin. Be sure to make shaving the last thing you do in the shower. (The blade gets better traction when hair and skin are plumped up with water.) For best results when you shave, use a moisturizing gel or cream on your legs instead of soap, which can be drying to the skin. It can also prematurely dull the blade, making nicks more likely to occur. After your shower, don!t forget to apply an unscented moisturizer to help soothe and soften just-shaved skin.

WHAT'S IN A NAME

who on specific occasions crossdresses and employs stereotypical feminine dialog, voice and mannerisms for the entertainment of other people (see camp).

Gay (community) - One who has a significant sexual or romantic attraction primarily to members of the same physical sex, or who identifies as a member of the gay community. Sometimes used as a synonym for LesGay (community) or gay male (community). Lesbians and bisexuals often do not feel included by this term. Derogatory slang for gay males includes queer, faggot, swish.

Gender Dysphoria (GD) - 1) Unhappiness or discomfort experienced by an individual about ones gender role assigned by society based on ones physical sex. Unhappiness or discomfort may be too mild of words for many individuals. Also referred to as gender euphoria when spoken of in the positive manner. 2) May include unhappiness or discomfort (mild and extreme) with one's physical sex as well.

Lesbian - A woman who has significant sexual or romantic attractions to the same sex, or who identifies as a member of the lesbian community. Bisexual women often do not feel included by this term. Derogatory slang: dyke, lesbo.

Transgendered (TG) - 1) a catch all for anyone in the gender community. 2) An individual who's gender identity is other than that assigned by society for an individuals physical sex. 3) An individual who chooses to live the life of the opposite sex without SRS. 4) An individual who's gender identity is somewhere between the transsexual identity and the transvestite identity.

Transsexual (TS) - 1) An individual who is sexual dysphoric. 2) An individual who's gender identity is that opposite of her/his physical sex. Normally desires modification of the physical body (i.e. SRS) to match that of gender identity.

Transvestite (TV) - 1) Anyone who dresses in the clothes assigned by society to the opposite sex for emotional reasons. 2) Anyone who expresses transgender feelings/actions yet still maintains a partial gender identity that matches physical sex (see bigendered).

ing out until Wednesday afternoon, so Stephan and I had dinner at a restaurant in George Town and just unwound from the previous two days activities. On Wednesday morning, I packed up and headed back to Washington National on the Metro. I was beat... we were all beat but we all felt that we had accomplished a lot for our community and that the world would never be quite the same.

Shelby

LINDA LEE, KUNG FOO TALKER

At 6' 6" he was a giant. Without question the leader of the four behind him. A strong argument for evolution and living proof some haven't strayed far from their primal beginnings. This wasn't going to be a work related conversation I thought watching his approach. But I smiled and for good reason. His ego was nearly as large and equally as fragile. It would wrinkle like taffeta. He was about to confront me. In practiced haste I stepped into my phone both and became a blur.

Before his next step I would transform. First my SISSY side. A touch of my not too Serious Integration of Silk, Satin and Yearnings. Images next. Images of my last SGA meeting. Hours of fun, love and laughter now girded me. A fanciful satin dress over ruffled petticoats molded around me. Then a murmur. My inner voice whispering: "Linda. Let go. Feel the satin. Ribbon ties your universe together. Become part of it. Be one with the dress." An involuntary "Oh" left my lips. A giggle followed as my Mary Jane's clicked together and I chanted: "I am a sissy, I am a sissy, I am a sissy". It was done. In the space of his first steps I had become: LINDA LEE, KUNG FOO TALKER.

Another member of the Hetroherd was about to face his worse nightmare. Himself. A self proclaimed Heterosexual Homophobic Conformist who would confront me NOT for what I did but for my nerve in doing it. And he could understand it if he wanted. He'd had a fantasy or two. Perhaps not like mine but like me in having them. I simply acted on mine while he still dreamed. That was our difference and his anger. I drew outside the lines. No theories on chromosome push would be given this day. None were needed. Kung Foo Talking would see to that.

A mixture of disciplines: Kung or Keep Under things Nicely Girlish supports my feminine side. Foo or Foo Foo my representation of that feminine self. Talking simply a child's logic learned from a child. I've raised three and they in turn have raised me. He would be trapped by his false logic as I have in the past. I'd use the "WHY" word. The most powerful word a child has in learning made even more powerful when used to teach. But first I'd need to make him receptive. I'd have to break his predictable path that had given him his previous successes.

"Hey, why don't you go and #$% yourself!"

I stepped gingerly towards him, stopped, struck a somewhat diminutive pose and said: "Hi Brain. Say, that's a pretty shirt! You get it locally?" It worked. His advance stopped or he would violate his own sense of space. The word "pretty" wasn't in his vocabulary. He looked down and then up again. Too late. His chain lost a link and with it his opening remarks. He recovered but I moved a pinkie towards my eye and touched the edge. He caught the motion, stammered a little and said: "Hey, never mind my shirt.

I hear you wear a dress. You a fag or what?"

I looked questioningly into his eyes for too long. I touched the edge of my lip using the pinkie again. I adore that little finger. It's so feminine. His stand relaxed a bit. Confidence gave him that. Too soon Brian I thought and smiled. That's when I hit as I said: "Now that's an interesting question!" WHY would YOU ask me something like that?" He looked at me and cocked his head. It wasn't what he expected. He searched and tried again as he said: "Because, we want to know if we got a fag working here or not."

I pondered his question with a touch of curiosity on my face. Then looked directly into his eyes once again and smiled. It was a keenly tight smile as I said: "Well, as you know, statistically there are a number of gays working here. But I'm more curious as to WHY YOU want to know?" His logic was gone now. His offensive confrontation suddenly took on a defensive form as he said: "Hey. I aint no fag if that's what your thinking. Your the one that wears a dress. Your the fag!" I paused again looking pensive, curious and then slightly confused before I said: "But you asked me. WHY would YOU want to know if I was gay or not?"

That was it. The third WHY had taken him past his practiced steps. He had to think now. He would have to answer me if he wanted to continue in this confrontation but that part of it was gone now. The mirror glinted light off his face. He couldn't answer without engaging in a conversation that required an answer first. Any answer now would hint at things he didn't want to pursue. It didn't matter what he was or why he asked. It simply would risk too much. He turned as he said: "Hey, why don't you go and #$% yourself!"

That was it. His last feeble line of defense to maintain his macho self before turning back to his friends. I didn't find it offensive any more than I would a bull snorting as it moved back towards the herd. A bull slightly dazed just after it had charged a cape and found it nailed to the wall. But it required a response and I gave one last lesson in life for his friends sake. He would have to explain both my comments and why I was still smiling as I said: "Brian. What you like to do is your business and I'm sorry I couldn't help. Oh and if can remember where you got that shirt let me know. It really is pretty!"

I turned back and almost skipped. Being a sissy is a wonderful feeling. I've looked into my mirror and love the image looking back. That's what mirrors are for. Oh, they can show faults if that's all your looking for but

How to Choose a Wig That Compliments Your Face Shape

Put your Best Face Forward!

If you're unsure of which style will be most flattering on you, use these suggestions as a guide to find a look that works with the shape of your face.

To Determine Your Face Shape:

In front of a mirror, pull your hair back. Trace the outline of your face with a bar of soap onto the mirror. Compare the outlined shape on the mirror to the illustrations below.

1. Triangle Shaped Face – ▲

Narrow forehead, with a wide chin.

Try a shapely shag or a curly style. Heavy bangs and layers build fullness on top to soften a wider crown. Hair should be layered all around and tapered in back and at the sides.

2. Square Shaped Face – ■

Angular jaw line is the same width as the forehead.

Try a short style that is wavy on top. The wispy edges soften a wide forehead and strong jawline.

3. Oval Shaped Face – ●

Well proportioned, with length of face longer than width.

Try any style. A classic oval shaped face looks great with all styles. Perhaps a longer style with a few graduated layers around the face.

4. Heart Shaped Face – ●

Wide forehead, high cheek-bones, narrow (V-shape) chin.

Try a short and sassy gamine crop that is wedged or tapered at the neck. The long wispy bangs soften a rounded and peaked forehead; layers are long at crown, graduated at the sides, and tapered at the nape of the neck.

5. Round Shaped Face – ●

Full cheeks, with a circular form.

Go longer, with lots of soft curls, a layered style, or a classic "page." Layers on top and longer tendrils in back elongate your face.

6. Narrow Shaped Face – ●

Slender face with a narrow chin.

Try a chic bob, or a bob with waves or soft curls on the top and sides. This style tends to "round-out" your face.

personally I like using them to see my progress. That's our other difference and then I wondered when the Brian's of the world would look on their own images honestly. Naw, that wouldn't work because then I couldn't be what I've practiced so hard at being: "Hey, look over on there. It's a girl. No that's a guy. No, it's: LINDA LEE, THE KUNG FOO TALKER defender of Truth, Justice and the Feminine way. SWISH.....

If you could remember your first meeting, the fear and anxiety. The amount of courage it took for yourself just to leave the house, let alone the come to a meeting. Each one of our visitors or potential new members has gone through hours of anxiety just to walk in the door. The least we can do is welcome them, acknowledge that they do exist and there are people willing to accept them.

When I became an elected officer I vowed to myself that I would never let a visitor or potential new members attend a meeting without at least a greeting from me. Just a few moments to exchange a welcome and hello makes all the difference between a new member and a drop-out. Fortunately, the majority of the membership feel the same way.

On a non-meeting night at Joseph's (Saturday, July 29), I, like Ava, entered quite surprised at the number of members, non-members, and a visitor from out of State that were there. It was nice to see every CD/TS involved in conversation, no one left out to stand in the corner.

That's what the SGA is all about. People learning to live with and accept themselves through conversation, public acceptance and exposure. With each meeting it becomes easier to accept ourselves when we learn to accept others. To quote Linda Lee, "Everything becomes accepted and normal with frequency and volume." We have been fortunate to find people like Joseph and others in the gay and lesbian community that accept each one of us.

I personally have found people in the CD/TS, gay and lesbian community to be better friends, better people, more understanding, and definitely more accepting then the so called "straight" community. Sometimes it makes me laugh at the "straights" and wonder why they fear the alternate life styles community. Maybe it's better that they don't know what they have been missing. If to many become involved and accepting then the ALS would become normal.

To borrow from Linda Lee again, from her "99% PURE" article. We to often judge people on the 1% of their lives that is for the most part kept private. The fact that we are cross-dressers, gay or lesbian places a label on us. Sometimes a label that "hurts" because the public judges us on that label. They seem to forget the other 99% that makes us the person we are: Fathers, mothers, providers, good workers, nurturing, honest, fun, involved in the community, helpful, and all the other wonderful "human" qualities. What bothers me most is that someone might be a thief and be considered more acceptable to the public than a gay or lesbian, or heaven forbid a crossdresser.

I don't know exactly where this article/writing originated or why I felt compeled to write it. But, my feelings of gratitude and the warmth I feel about the SGA, Joseph, and all of the wonderful people I have meet over the last two years needed to be expressed.

How can I shave without irritation?

- To prevent underarm irritation when you shave, follow these tips:
- Don't shave immediately after waking, since that's when skin is most sensitive.
- Use a razor made for women. Its blades are designed to shave closely but without irritating skin.
- Press lightly when you shave. Too much pressure won't result in a closer shave.
- Wet underarm skin thoroughly so that hair has a chance to get soft.
- If you shave with soap, choose one with cream in it to prevent irritation.
- Shave underarm hair in one or two directions at most.
- If possible, wait an hour after shaving before applying antiperspirant.

PERFECT SHOES For every outfit

MARY JANES: A-Line skirts demand a slightly heaver shoe than straight skirts.
HEFTY LOAFER: Flowing, wide-leg pants can carry a weighty loafer. the width of pants perfectly.
CHUNKY BOOT: The heavy knit of wide-leg pants calls for a chunky shoe.
CLASSIC PUMP: Short, straight skirts take on a professional tone with classic pumps.
SATIN FLATS: Narrow-leg pants are best paired with delecate shoes. Although the rounded toe gives this loafer weight, the thin sole makes it refined.
HIGH LOAFER: Another option for skinny pants.
LACE-UP BOOTS: The slender silhouette of a wrap skirt call for a narrow shoe.
STACKED PUMP: Cuffed trousers can afford a heaver shoe than their uncuffed cousins.
HIGH HEELS: Mid-length pencil skirts cry out for a high-heeled shoe with a pointy toe to emphasize their lean lines.
SPECTATORS: Pants that are slightly wider than classic trousers but not quite wide-legs need a shoe that strikes the right balance.
HEAVY LOAFER: Full skirts call for a weighty shoe.
SATIN LOAFER: Uncuffed trousers are best complemented by a delicate shoe.
PATENT PUMPS: The look of a long, slit skirt demnds an elegant, narrow shoe.
MID HEELS: Fuller skirts can carry a variety of shoes.
